DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 28-31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Nagasawa (6,430,355).

Regarding claim 28, Nagasawa discloses a recording medium with a cartridge that includes a memory device separated from the recording medium (col. 12, lines 20-48); loading the recording medium cartridge into a reproducing apparatus (fig. 1); transmitting at least some of the information from the memory device included in the recording medium cartridge to the reproducing apparatus (1b); and reproducing the signals in accordance with the transmitted information (col. 12, line 20-48); wherein the transmitted information includes data identifying at least two of the signals recorded on the recording medium (col. 12, line 20-48) and specifies a predetermined order for the identified signals, the predetermined order being different from the order in which the signals are recorded on the recording medium (col. 14, line 14 – col. 21, line 23). In other words, the editing device allows a predetermined reproduction order (note: the claim limitations do not specify a specific predetermined order; therefore, a predetermined reproduction order meets the limitations) to be specified other than the order in which the signals are recorded on the recording medium.

Regarding claim 29, Nagasawa discloses that the recording medium is a magnetic tape (fig. 1).

Regarding claim 30, Nagasawa discloses that the signal recorded on the recording medium include at least one video signal (col. 4, line 7-33).

Regarding claim 31, Nagasawa discloses that the information stored in the memory device includes text data (col. 12, lines 20-48).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 33-36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nagasawa in view of Yaegashi et al (5,956,453).

Regarding claim 33, many of the limitations were previously discussed in the art rejection of claim 28. Please refer to the art rejection of claim 28 for the discussion of these limitations. However, Nagasawa does not disclose that the information stored in the memory device is stored in the form of a plurality of data packets, the size of and format of the data packets having been determined prior to the storing of the information in the memory device, and wherein the information is organized according to a hierarchical structure, the hierarchical structure including at least two levels.

Yaegashi et al teaches information stored in the memory device is stored in the form of a plurality of data packets (fig. 5), the size of and format of the data packets having been determined prior to the storing of the information in the memory device (fig. 5), and wherein the information is organized according to a hierarchical structure (fig. 6A), the hierarchical structure including at least two levels (fig. 6A).

It would have been highly desirable to have a data organizing a hierarchical structure so that editing is easier (col. 1, line 33 – col. 2, line 30).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have the data stored in the memory as discussed above in the device of Nagasawa.

The limitations of claims 34-35 were discussed in the art rejection of claims 29-30. Please refer to the art rejection of claims 29-30.

Regarding claim 36, the information of Yaegashi et al includes a level code indicative of the level within the hierarchical structure to which the data packet corresponds (fig. 5), as discussed previously.

Conclusion

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Sezan et al; Nakajima et al, Ten Kate et al, Norton, Okuyama, Wood et al, Setogawa et al, and Murata et al disclose various devices using a memory in cassette (MIC).
